BETA OF DKE AT UNC • MAY 2002

We Need Your Help

By Rick Hopkins '91

We thank the alumni for all of your support in the past, and continue to need your indispensable help with several pressing items.

DKE House Capital Campaign

There is still time to participate in the capital campaign. While the formal campaign is over, the plaque listing all donors has not been finalized. Currently, there are 915 living DKEs, and 522 have participated in the capital campaign. The brothers and house corporation are working very hard to protect the finest house on campus.

DKE Professorship/Carolina First Campaign

The DKE professorship is $50,000 short of the required goal to get into the legislature for matching-funds consideration. For an endowed professorship in the college of arts and sciences, which is $1 million, the N.C. legislature will match 50 cents on the dollar at $666,000. We are hopeful to reach our goal by the upcoming legislative session.

The DKE house is the first fraternity/sorority house on campus and, perhaps in the nation, to fund an endowed professorship. Following the DKE lead, the Phi Deltis are working on a professorship, and we hear several other houses are very interested.

The DKE professorship is in conjunction with The Carolina First Campaign, the university's $1.5 billion campaign. All gifts are tax deductible and included in The Carolina First Campaign.

Rush

The brothers also need your help with rush. There are fewer rushees this year, and we need all DKEs to fill in the enclosed card with information on potential future rushees. The rush process is shorter than ever, and any background on prospective rushees is appreciated.

A Great Year for Beta DKE

By Robert C. Poitras '94, President

We have had a great year at the DKE house! Phase II renovations were completed just before school started. We celebrated our 150th anniversary and also received the Lion's Trophy from DKE national on the same day! We built a new basketball court and relandscaped the front yard. In January, we held a career planning dinner with the senior class and alumni board of directors. We next hired Don Gaddo to help oversee the upkeep of the house on a daily basis. Most recently, the alumni board held a barbecue with the undergraduates before the spring football scrimmage.

I would like to thank many people for their tireless hard work this past year, including but not limited to Howard Brubaker '56, Tee Baur, Rick Hopkins, Jim Gray '70, Logan Sawyer and Don Gaddo.

The renovation/construction is long over, and the house still looks great, thanks in large part to a required security deposit from all members and a more responsible attitude of the undergraduates.

It is important to the continued success of the DKE house to have the alumni actively involved. I hope all of us will find time to stop by and visit when we are in the area. Many classes are considering holding class reunions soon, and that is great! The house will be closed during summer school but will reopen in mid-August for the school year. Please see the football schedule on Page 6, and mark your calendars for Alumni Weekend on Saturday, November 2, 2002.

Brothers attend career planning session in January.

George Butler '66: A Voyage of Discovery from Britain to Antarctica and Beyond

George Tyssen Butler looked the part, from his elephant hair bracelet to a jaunty walk, as he made his way up the DKE house sidewalk for the first time in the early 1960s.

Born in England, raised in Africa and Jamaica, schooled at Groton, George was about to become a member of the DKE class of 1966, one of 24 scrubbed young men in narrow ties, madras sportcoats, white socks and Weejans. Even though the class of '66 was to suffer fairly alarming attrition from too many parties and too little classtime, George and his DKE classmates were to go on to bigger and better things.

In George's case, it was filmmaking. In fact, his latest endeavor, "The Endurance: Shackleton's Legendary Antarctic Expedition," an epic film about fabled English explorer Sir Ernest Shackleton, has taken the entertainment world by storm.

Based on a book of the same title by Caroline Alexander, Butler's film chronicles one of the most amazing feats of modern survival, the travails of Shackleton and his 27-man crew in their failed 22-month attempt to be the first to cross the Antarctic continent on foot beginning in 1914.

Shackleton and his men, including a coterie of sled dogs, set out on the sailing vessel Endurance from England, and almost two years later completed what, by most measures, is the most amazing journey ever undertaken.

Butler and his New York-based production company, White Mountain Films, actually produced the cinematic Shackleton story in two versions: a documentary using much of the original footage and still photos shot by the expedition's photographer, and a 40-minute Imax presentation. Both are playing in theatres around the world to thrilled audiences and four-star reviews.

Some critics have called the film a sure Oscar contender, and it has already won its share of awards, including Best Documentary honors in film festivals from Chicago to Hawaii.

But this isn't Butler's first foray into nonfiction feature films. In 1977, he produced and directed "Pumping Iron," an intriguing story of male bodybuilders featuring a then-unknown Arnold Schwarzenegger. Eight years later, it was the ladies' turn with the bench press in Butler's "Pumping Iron II: The Women."

The filming of "The Endurance" took Butler and his production crews from the British Isles, where they interviewed descendents of the men from the original 1914 expedition, to the Antarctic. Production began in July 1999 and finished with a seven-week stint in Antarctica that ended in March 2000. Traveling on icebreakers, the 20-person Antarctic unit departed from Uruguay, tracing Shackleton's perilous voyage from South Georgia Island to Elephant Island and into the Weddell Sea.

The shoot covered the explorer's voyage to some of the most remote and inhospitable locations on earth. Butler and his crews encountered many of the same conditions that Shackleton did, including blizzards and hurricane-force winds that marooned some of the filmmakers for a time on South Georgia Island.

George recently was heard to remark, "Only the DKE house could have prepared me for Antarctica."

BETA – NORTH CAROLINA

By George T. Butler '66

(This chapter letter was written before the Convention. – Ed.)

Perhaps it was spontaneous exuberance that floated in with the unusually good fall weather, or perhaps it was the first year of deferred rush at North Carolina. (The pledges normally absorb any excess energy of the active Chapter.) At any rate, the members of Beta finally harnessed their creative powers and sponsored brother Alex Shufford '66 as master carpenter for the project: a new alumni room.

There had always been a feeling at Beta that there should be a central place in the house where the content of the archives could be exhibited in order to instill a more active sense of history amongst members and alumni. For this purpose, a ground floor storeroom was completely renovated, with a new floor and side paneling. It was furnished through the master work of brothers Shufford, White and Oliver who constructed a walnut bar and trophy case. Hoping for a good basketball season, which normally brings the alumni in flocks, Beta is awaiting early opportunities to show off the new room.

Among other areas of campus activities, Dekes were well represented on the football and soccer fields. Joe Churchill '66 held a tackle spot on the line and Bee Chapman '66 continued his kicking duties. John Loud '67 led the soccer team to a 6-2-1 season with the help of Bronson Van Wyck '67, Tommy White '67, George Butler '66, and next year's co-captain Tom Roberts. Meanwhile, Hap Stewart '66 was elected to the Honor Council.

With a cooler winter in sight (the Farmers Almanac predicted entirely too much snow for Chapel Hill), Beta is settling inside by the fire until Groundhog Day in February. At this time, an awakening animal will stick a sleepy head out to look at its shadow in the temperate seventy-degree air. But then, no wonder it is confused, since most of the prophetic creatures (the ones we know about) migrate each August from Waterville, Maine, and similar points north.

Meet Don Gaddo, New DKE House Director

After the DKE house renovations were finished, the officers and board members set about the job of finding someone to look after things. After all, protecting a $2 million investment is serious business.

Meet Don Gaddo, retired president of the U.S. division of Jannock Ltd., a Canadian company. Don, who once also played minor-league baseball with the Milwaukee Braves' farm system, retired from his CEO job in 1995.

He and his wife, Sharon, spent 14 months in Europe, unwinding from a lifetime career in business. "We acted like high school kids. We loved every moment."

Bored with retirement and wanting a taste of college campus life, the Gaddos moved to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1996. Right away, they found themselves thrust into the world of campus Greek affairs. But it was by design. "We thought it would be exciting to become house parents at a sorority, and so we did." The Gaddos took up residence at the Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority.

In 1998 Don was asked to become house director at Alpha Tau Omega, and a few months ago he took on a similar assignment at the DKE house. Since his taking over at ATO, the fraternity has been named one of the top chapters in the nation for three years running. Don, who likes to apply his business experience toward helping Greek members run their houses, says, "I love every moment of my new endeavors."

It didn't take long for Don to put his management experience into play. He found himself a member of the chancellor's committee for Greek affairs and was selected as an honorary member of the National Golden Key Honor Society by the students at UNC. He was also named UNC house director of the year for three years in a row.

But somehow, watching over two fraternities and a sorority and, most recently, helping oversee the UNC Greek system wasn't quite enough. So Don turned to writing. In 1998 he published his first book, and since then he's written two more.

Angel: A Mighty Fortress is the true story of an ill-fated B-17 shot down over Germany during WWII. The plane's navigator was Don's cousin, who died in the crash. The book is now in its fourth printing and has been transformed into a screenplay. Don's second book is titled The Stained Glass Window, and was followed by War's Lost Love Found. All three deal with the WWII air crew that mysteriously disappeared on July 19, 1944. "The mysteries surrounding the crew, the B-17 Flying Fortress and the families are captivating examples that miracles do exist," Don says. "I have spoken at Airventure, the world's second-largest air show. Only the show in Paris, France, is larger. This year my topic will be American air power."

Sharon and Don have been married for 43 years. They have three children and six grandchildren.

About working with Chapel Hill's Greek community, Don says, "I love working with the young men and women, as does my wife. Although challenging at times, the work is also rewarding beyond one's greatest anticipation. It also keeps me young, engaged and wanting to do more."

Fraternities on "Fragile Ground"

By Jim Gray '70

Ever since moving from New York to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1999, I have noticed a growing uneasiness about fraternities at UNC in general. A handful of houses are vacant and boarded up. Many are undergoing renovation, but the work goes slowly, as I expect the fundraising goes slowly as well. The Deke house is handsome and strong, but around it are signs that something is wrong.

When I heard recently that 225 men pledged fraternities last fall but only 165 actually made it through initiation eight weeks later, I and others moved from uneasiness to major concern that the fraternities, as we know them, are in jeopardy.

Even with our spectacularly refurbished Deke house as the best facility on campus by far, our Beta brothers have to work overtime to recruit and maintain a pledge class large enough to be financially self-supporting.

In January of this year, the UNC Board of Trustees, chaired by Deke Tim Burnett '62 and chancellor James Moeser, called the fraternities and sororities to a special Student Affairs Committee meeting to warn the Greeks that the whole system is not living up to the standards of excellence and has to change for the better. Too many complaints from parents and students had reached the trustees, and these could not be ignored. Later a trustee told several of us who attended a second committee meeting that fraternities are "on fragile ground."

Robert Poitras '94, president of the Beta Deke board, joined with Don Gaddo, our new part-time house manager, to do something to help. I also joined them, and together with an energetic Chi Psi and thoughtful SAE, we were the catalysts for a new group of fraternity alumni.

We have had five meetings, growing in attendance each time so that all social fraternities have joined in and formed the UNC Fraternity Alumni Advisors Committee. It's a long name, but our mission is simple: to help fraternities survive and thrive. Our objectives are to assist the brothers in improving in the areas receiving increased criticism—alcohol abuse, drugs and hazing going far beyond responsible pledge training. We also will staunchly support the fraternities when they merit that support, and we will be working with UNC for the university to step up to do more to nurture this great institution.

We are in the process of formally organizing, being recognized as an official organization by the university, and writing our formal mission statement and bylaws. I have been elected president, and Robert Poitras and Don Gaddo serve on the executive committee. Mike Hoyt '66 is also active on the committee.

We have important work to do. What is gratifying is that the board of trustees, the chancellor, the Office of Greek Affairs and the vice chancellor for student affairs have genuinely welcomed our group to working toward this common goal of a thriving fraternity system at UNC. Everybody considers us the fourth leg of a strong table that supports the Greek system, along with the students themselves, the university and the national Greek organizations.

We promise to seek your counsel (please e-mail me at gstonehill@aol.com) and will keep you informed.

Learning on the Job

By Robbie Kane '03, Chapter President

Sadly, another spring draws to a close here in Chapel Hill. As I wish the seniors the best and prepare for the reality that I'll be a senior myself next year, I can't help but marvel at how quickly the time passes here at the DKE house.

This spring has been slower than the fall, as it customarily is, but the undergraduates are still keeping quite busy. Many of the brothers traveled to Kenan Stadium to watch Jeb Terry '03 in action at the spring football game. A mixture of undergraduates and alumni also enjoyed a barbecue and question-and-answer session with Rick Steinbacher from the football team afterward. For the non-varsity-caliber athletes among us, there were successful intramural soccer and basketball teams in the early spring.

For other extracurricular involvement, many Dekes used their time outside the classroom to contribute to our philanthropic objectives. We had group involvement with Habitat for Humanity again this semester, as well as individuals who chose to work with organizations such as the Big Buddy program. Many of the Little Buddies enjoyed shooting hoops with their Big Buddies on our new basketball court, which was built at the end the fall semester.

I was very happy to see our community involvement carry momentum from the fall. I am similarly pleased at how the chapter continues to foster respect among its members and for the house. As my tenure winds down next fall, I will leave office confident not only in the next administration's abilities, but in those of the entire chapter. I have learned a lot during my time in office and hopefully accomplished a great deal.

It would have been impossible to achieve our success without the help of my treasurer, Robert McCall '03, and vice president, Jonathan Wellborn '03, as well as guys like Conrad Graham '03, Luke Foster '02 and Matt White '02, who have held multiple positions within the house and helped assure that things ran smoothly. I would also like to thank the board members for their continual support and active interest in the house. Also, I would like to offer my most sincere appreciation to Meg Miller and Don Gaddo and, last but certainly not least, Robert Poitras '94 for their everyday guidance in keeping the DKE house the finest on campus.

I wish everyone the best and hope to see you all in Chapel Hill this upcoming football season.

Brothers and guests enjoy a barbecue after the spring football game.

Doing What We Can to Help Children and Others

By Scott Martyr '04

In the fall, the DKE house's annual spaghetti dinner produced some of the finest pasta ever and raised $1,000. We chose to donate all the proceeds to the Timmons family. Their youngest son Joey's battle with leukemia forced his mother to quit her job in order to provide necessary attention for her sick son. The proceeds helped pay for a portion of the medical expenses that accompanied his treatment. Just before Christmas break, the DKE house also helped stock the base of their Christmas tree by donating various gifts. The Timmons wrote a wonderful thank-you note describing their appreciation and Joey's cheerfulness on Christmas morning.

In addition, certain members of the DKE house chose to adopt a Little Buddy through the campus YMCA's Big Buddy program. Since the majority of the children's parents work full time, the DKE house has provided a structured after-school environment as well as mentors for the boys to look up to. Other members of the house volunteered their time to coach a recreational basketball team.

The DKE house plans to continue working with Habitat for Humanity and anticipates additional volunteer work next fall.

Alumni News

John B. Saunders '43 (The King Home, 1555 Oak Ave., Evanston, IL 60201-4233) Sorry to report the death of Robert Lane Davis III '41, in Honolulu, December 4, 2001. Bob came to Chapel Hill from Farmville, N.C., via Darlington School, Ga. He lived for many years in Englewood, Colo., before retiring to Hawaii.

J. Stuart Gaul Jr. '44 (5325 Hardison Rd., Charlotte, NC 28226-6425) In 1941 after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, the War Department advised that if we were accepted into engineering or medical school, they wanted us in that capacity. Several of us got into med school after two years and two trimesters of college. Four years med school in three years (around the calendar), duty as med officer on USS Fresno, as war ended. Orthopedic residency at U.Va. and the A.I. Dupont Institute (pediatric orthopedics), joined by dad in practice in 1953. Practiced orthopedic and hand surgery for 41 years. Chief of the Charlotte Memorial Hospital orthopedic department and director of the residency training program 1955-1965. Our residency program rating rose from 38th to 85th in national quality, where most residency training programs are in university settings. Gaul Orthopedic Group merged with another group to become Charlotte Orthopedic Specialists, P.A., now with 31 "orthopods" including four hand surgeons. I retired in 1995 and published two new procedures for handling major destruction to thumbs and fingers, with emphasis on restoring the unique sensory function essential for writing, buttoning shirts, typing on computer keyboards, distinguishing a dime from a nickel by feel, etc. As a retiree, I got involved in a highway building problem in the Appalachian Mountains, which has not yet been resolved. I learned how a major state government department (of transportation) can evade facts and synthesize excuses in order to ignore the citizens.

Rose Marie and I have three offspring: a Ph.D. chemist who teaches the chemistry of art at the Chicago Art Institute, another orthopedic hand surgeon and a restaurant owner/manager. Also four grandchildren. I'm afraid my modest DKE contribution won't go very far. I find the needs of the American Red Cross, Habitat for Humanity, Salvation Army, various environmental issues and many other organizations need more than I can give.

William N. Christenson '49 (23 Glen Washington Rd., Bronxville, NY 10708-5801) Enjoying retirement since 1995 after 47 years of active medical work. With three daughters, have acquired seven grandchildren with one still in utero, making four girls and four boys. Wife Betty and I live in Yonkers and also Delray Beach, Fla. I have acquired a mostly serene and joyous attitude toward life at 76 years of age.

Paul W. Mengel '50 (28 Oak Ln., Danville, VA 24541-5600; lol@gamewood.net) Lois and I, together with our three children, their spouses and children (14 in all), celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary at Kingsmill Resort around Thanksgiving. Keep up the good "roaring."

David W. Allen '52 (111 Shorelake Dr., Apt. E, Greensboro, NC 27455-1467; sna2405@aol.com) Rebuilding burnt-down home. No one injured, all is well. Hope to be in by September 2002.

E. Bretney Smith Jr. '52 (11 Hilltop Rd., Asheville, NC 28803) My company [Swananda Cleaners, Inc.] is celebrating 102 years in the laundry/dry cleaning industry.

F. Debele Maner '53 (308 Bradley Point Rd., Savannah, GA 31410-3509; fmaner@aol.com) Impressed and pleased to see my old Deke house roommate's (Herbert H. Thorp '54, deceased) son Holden given the extensive write-up in the January-February 2002 Carolina Alumni Review.

Dick Stoker '60 (2930 N. Atlantic Blvd., Ft. Lauderdale, FL 33308; stokerthebroker@aol.com) The stairway brings back memories in that I managed to ride my World War II Army motorcycle up at least five stairs on one or two weekends of revelry and decompression time; couldn't go further due to the troublesome habit of some of the brothers and their dates lounging on the stairs, slowing momentum as you can imagine.

William B. Fearon '63 (P.O. Box 38, Saxapahaw, NC 27340-0038; earlofsax@juno.com) I started a new business after designing a vertical stoneware chicken roaster called Klucker Kooker and am shipping 20 per month from home. I enjoy living close to Chapel Hill.

Nelson Schwab III '67 (2065 Queens Road East, Charlotte, NC 28207) Managing Director, Carousel Capital Partners (nschwab@carouselcap.com)

Walter E. Hussman Jr. '68 (One Sunset Pt., Little Rock, AR 72207-1710) I received the Roots and Wings Award in March 2002 for generously helping Arkansas children and other good causes. My father was "one of the most generous people I've met in my life," and I recall my mother delivering groceries to needy families. The award was presented by the Arkansas Community Foundation.

Paul B. Woodson '68 (6 Dogwood Rd., Salisbury, NC 28144) I was reelected in November 2001 to my third term as mayor pro-tem of Salisbury, N.C. I'd like to say hello to my DKE roommate Kent S. Hedman '68. Enjoyed reading about his daughter, Lang, graduating from Brown. My daughter Kristy, who is 16, participated in the quarterfinals of the Double Tennis State Championship this past season.

Eric C. Fast '71 (200 Locust Ave., Rye, NY 10580) CEO, Crane Co. (efast@craneco.com)

John E. Hine '71 (5634 Bayou Glen, Houston, TX 77056-1002; tortughahine@houston.rr.com) Keep up the good work — the key to the development effort is the communication — the newsletter is a great tool!

Beta DKE Loses One of Our Best

We regret to inform you of the death of Paul Horner '91. Paul exemplified all that was good about being a DKE—friendship, loyalty and a passion for living, to name but a few. He enriched all of our lives and leaves a void that will never be filled. Our thoughts and prayers go out to Paul's family, especially to his mother, Jean, and his brother, Jerry '88.

Several of Paul's friends have established a memorial in his honor, to benefit one of his greatest loves — protecting the rivers on which he found so much joy. If you would like to make a donation, please contact

We want to hear from you!

The success of our alumni program depends not only on your financial support but also on hearing from you so other brothers know what you're doing, how things are going and where we can reach you. Don't miss this opportunity to maintain contact with men who meant so much to you in your college days. Please take time now to fill out and mail the enclosed news form. Your news will be published in the next issue of The Lion's Roar.
